Acting upon the proofs of her father's identity as a brother of William S. O'Brien, furnished by the daughter, the lawyer made a demand on the trustees of the estate for $1,000,000, basing his claim on the grounds that undue and illegal influence had been used with the deceased in the disposal of his property. The trustees at first refused to entertain the demand, but proofs of the relationship being shown them, the matter was referred to three arbitrators, with the result recorded above.

A MISER'S END .- [New Haven Palladium, June 28.]-Marvin Banning of Hadlyme, a miser and a hermit, died recently, aged seventy-four, and he is said to have starved himself to death. Having early developed habits of industry, shrewdness, and rigid economy, be accumulated an ample fortune before reaching the age of fifty. He said he never had time to look for a wife, and be lived alone, his diet for the past ten years being raw pork and bard bread. Sometimes periods in the coldest of weather, and many supposed he was really very poor. When he was dving, however, he told his attendant that treasures were concealed in and about and AT LOW PRICES, every description of his house, and since then several bags of silver and gold, aggregating $3,000, bave been found in a barrel of butternuts in the BUSINESS-CARDS. garret, while a box containing gold and silver and several thousand dollars' worth of United States and other bonds was unearthed in the cellar. Banning was a shareholder in the Saybrook National Bank and a large CIRCULARS. depositor in several savings banks, but the amount of his property is not known. As he left no will it all goes to his sister, a Mrs. Wright, of Deep River, who is in very BILL-HEADS, needy circumstances.

Chicago Times publishes a letter from Big-Ridge Camp, Wyoming Territory, giving a description of fossil remains of an antedeluvian monster found by Professor Paige. The Professor describes the length of the animal to have been at least eighty feet, with a height of eighteen feet. The party used as a table a tipia bone five and a balf feet long, though much broken. He judged that the animal was carnivorous; a flesheating beast is quite evident from the form and make of his teeth-long, conical, and sharp-set, in sockets like the reptile. SHERRY-CESAR.-[London Society.]To point out a verbal connection between the wine called sherry and a Roman senator might appear at the first blush a mere attempt to rival that ardent philologist who insisted on tracing the derivation of pickled cucumber from a Jewish prophet through the following filiation; King Jeremiah-Jeremiah King-Jerry King-gherkin-pickled cucumber.
